Messrs. Lay's Orchard & Nursery.

We have just had presented to us a basket of Apples from the Orchard of Mr. E. D. Lay & Co. of this town, containing a variety of eleven kinds of the choicest fruit, (viz:) Colvert; Green Sweeting; Romanite; R. I. Greening; Hooker; Steele's Red Winter; Rambour; Golden Russett; Winter Pearmain; Phoenix and Surprize. Several of the samples girted thirteen inches each and were the most perfect of the kind that we have ever seen. The proprietors of this establishment are now cultivating about 300,000 trees and plants, all of which are in a most healthy and flourishing state, proving clearly that our soil and climate is among the most favorable for the growth and production of all the fruits peculiar to our latitude.

Federalism and Locofocoism.
